

Embrace the challenge. Climate change is now an unprecedented source of risks and opportunities for businesses around the world. With over 10 years experience in the carbon markets and a comprehensive coverage of the carbon value chain, First Climate is the partner of choice to help your company embrace the climate challenge in a way which makes sense from the environmental as well as the business perspective.

First Climate's services are based on our experience with leading companies worldwide and range from corporate carbon offset sales to full-scale carbon management strategic advice. Our key strength is our ability to understand your needs and provide custom-fit, fully integrated solutions thanks to a global team of carbon experts.

Although every company requires a tailor-made and individual solution, a systematic framework can be applied to organise and execute the development of a climate solution in an efficient manner. First Climate's experts can take you through all the steps of our well-proven „Calculate, Develop, Reduce, Offset, Communicate“ process. Our diverse portfolio of products and services allows us to develop unique and effective low-carbon solutions specifically adapted to your business objectives.

Calculate your emissions

Quantifying your carbon emissions is the first step towards systematic carbon management. Determining the carbon footprint of a product or your entire business can be a challenging exercise which requires well-coordinated processes within a precisely defined framework. First Climate can support you in assessing your emissions as well as in designing a greenhouse gas inventory and accounting system to track your emissions on an on-going basis.

Develop your climate strategy

Addressing climate change is a long-term challenge. Assessing climate-related risks and opportunities to your business and defining measurable goals and programs to meet them are the cornerstone of a holistic and robust climate strategy. First Climate can support you in developing and optimizing a climate strategy which will meet your environmental targets while contributing to your overall business objectives.

Reduce the avoidable emissions

On the basis of an accurate carbon footprint or lifecycle analysis, First Climate can support you in developing a corporate greenhouse gas management system. Our experts identify measures to optimize your use of energy and reduce avoidable emissions. With our technical partners, First Climate can help your company engage in the low-carbon economy.

Offset the unavoidable emissions

First Climate maintains a broad portfolio of high-quality emission reduction projects with a steady supply of carbon credits. Our experts can help you in identifying the credit types and projects which will best suit your preferences and strategic goals.

First Climate's portfolio includes carbon credits of the highest quality standards that go above and beyond climate protection. These projects contribute considerably to the overall sustainable development of the region, benefit the local economy and improve local environmental conditions.

Communicate your engagement

First Climate can support your marketing efforts to communicate your climate change response to your stakeholders. First Climate designs communication tools which are interactive, fun, educational and user-friendly, and which will substantiate your stakeholder communication in view of a rising societal awareness on climate change.

Our clients can take advantage of individual consulting and support services to develop e.g. a green communication campaign, marketing material or internet solutions to communicate their climate change initiatives. With our communications experts you can get the message across to the people that matter most to you.

To find out how you can optimize your current carbon position and turn the climate challenge into business opportunities, please contact a First Climate professional at climatenutral@firstclimate.com.